Who this document is for?

This document is for third parties requesting a credit report on a borrower's loan with the consent of the borrower. A third party could be:

1. A person acting in a non-professional or non-advisory capacity – for example, a friend, relative or spouse.
2. A person acting in a professional or advisory capacity – for example, a financial advisor.
3. A firm acting in a professional or advisory capacity – for example, accountants or solicitors.

The Central Credit Register

The Central Credit Register is a national database that, on request, provides:

- a borrower with an individual credit report detailing their credit agreements;
- a lender with comprehensive information to help with credit assessments; and
- the Central Bank with better insights into national trends in the provision of credit.

The Central Credit Register also supports the Central Bank's obligations and functions, including consumer protection, supervising the financial sector and ensuring financial stability.

Since 30 June 2017, banks, credit unions and any lender providing consumer loans of €500 or more must submit personal and credit information on those loans to the Central Credit Register.

Consumer loans include credit cards, mortgages, overdrafts and personal loans.

Since 31 March 2018, Local Authorities and Moneylenders providing loans of €500 or more must submit personal and credit information on those loans to the Central Credit Register. Business loans are also included from this time.

Since 30 June 2019 lenders who provide Hire Purchase, PCPs or similar type loans of €500 or more must submit personal and credit information on those loans to the Central Credit Register.

Information submitted by lenders is matched by the Central Credit Register and used to create a credit report.

Lenders must request a copy of a borrowers credit report when they have applied for a loan of €2,000 or more. They may also, if they wish, request a copy of the credit if the loan application is for less than €2,000.

Lenders may also request a copy of the credit report if

- the borrower has requested a re-structure of an existing loan;
- there are arrears on an existing loan; or
- there has been a breach of the limit on a credit card or overdraft.

The Central Credit Register does not:

- decide if a loan is approved or not – the lender makes that decision;
- score or grade credit reports

Who owns the information?

The Central Bank owns the information held on the Central Credit Register. The Central Bank is a data controller under the Data Protection Acts. Information submitted by lenders to the Central Credit Register is used to create individual credit reports. A credit report can help lenders when making decisions about loans and loan applications. More information on the collection and use of your personal data is available at centralcreditregister.ie.

This webpage will also give you a link to the Central Bank's Data Protection Privacy Notice.

Do I need the borrower's consent to get a credit report?

By law you need the consent of the borrower before you can request their Credit Report (Section 15(6) of the Credit Reporting Act 2013).

To ensure that all data protection rights are upheld, and to get access to a credit report, you, as the third-party applicant, must provide:

1. identification documents for the borrower;
2. your own identification documents;
3. an application form signed by the borrower – appendix 1; and
4. a letter of consent signed by the borrower – appendix 2.

This privacy statement provides information about the ways in which the Central Credit Register processes the personal data it gets from lenders in connection with loan applications and loan agreements for €500 or more.

For data protection legislation purposes, the data controller for personal data provided to the Central Credit Register is the Central Bank of Ireland, North Wall Quay, Dublin 1. All information on the Central Credit Register is stored within the European Union. If a borrower requests a credit report from outside the European Union, we will respond as instructed by the borrower.

The Central Credit Register has been established by the Central Bank of Ireland, under the Credit Reporting Act 2013 (the Act). The Central Credit Register is a mandatory database of credit information. The Central Bank has contracted with CRIF Ireland Ltd, Adelphi Plaza, Georges Street Upper Dún Laoghaire Co Dublin (a wholly owned subsidiary of CRIF SpA) to operate the Central Credit Register. CRIF Ireland Ltd is the Central Bank's data processor.

Under the Act, lenders are obliged to send in credit information and personal information on individual borrowers to the Central Credit Register. Personal information includes:

- (a) name
- (b) date of birth
- (c) gender
- (d) current and previous addresses
- (e) telephone number
- (f) personal public service number (PPSN)

This information is necessary for the purposes of accurately identifying borrowers and matching their loans, including loans that they may have with more than one lender.

This information is stored securely on the Central Credit Register and will be released only when a lender or the borrower to whom the information relates requests access; if the borrower to whom the information relates, consents to the release of this information to another person; as provided by the Credit Reporting Act 2013 as amended, the Data Protection Act 2018 or as required or permitted by law or any other applicable legislation. The Central Bank may also transfer information to state agencies and law enforcement bodies when it is considered necessary and proportionate to do so.

Personal data about a credit agreement will be held on the Central Credit Register for five years. This five-year period generally runs from the date of final repayment of the loan in question. It is important for the Central Bank to keep information so it can provide an accurate credit profile of a borrower. This information will be contained in a credit report.

A credit report will contain information on any credit applications submitted by a borrower, such as the type of loan applied for, and the amount requested. Information on credit applications is kept for six months.

A credit report will also contain a 'footprint'. This is a record of all the dates that a Credit Report has been requested on, who has requested them, and the type and purpose of the request.

The Central Bank may also use any information held on the Central Credit Register in the performance of any of its functions. This information will only be used in a pseudonymised way.

Borrowers rights

Under the Credit Reporting Act 2013, borrowers have the following rights in relation to information held on the Central Credit Register. A borrower has a right

- to insert an explanatory statement on your credit report;
- to apply to have inaccurate, incomplete or out-of-date information amended;
- to report suspected impersonation;

- to get a copy of their credit report.

To request your credit report or to request a credit report on behalf of another person, you will need to provide identification documents.

Under data protection legislation, borrowers have the right to access personal data held about them on the Central Credit Register, and to apply to have inaccurate, incomplete or out-of-date personal data rectified. Borrowers also have the right to request that access to their personal data be restricted while an amendment requested by that borrower is being considered by the Central Credit Register.
